Re: Personal Property Tax

To maintain tax rates and still provide basic services, municipalities are managing their current revenue better looking for new sources of revenue. Westerly is not different, recently we have raised fees for police detail, added fees for job applications, and put additional effort on collecting past due taxes.

Westerly levies over $1.0 million a year in personal property taxes. This is a tax that businesses pay on equipment that they own. Businesses are to report annual the amount of equipment they have to the town. While this is a requirement there are no tools for the town to enforce this. Working with the Assessor's office the finance department have determined that there are 450 businesses in Westerly that have not filed or are not current with their filing of this report. (list attached) It should be noted that some of these business listed may be out of business or have no equipment.

Many states allow municipalities to do audits of personal property taxes on business and assess the tax. This is a relatively easy task that involves matching up what equipment the business has reported to the IRS and taken a tax deduction for to the list reported to the town.

It is my estimate that if all businesses in Westerly were compliant with reporting the annual tax levy on personal property tax would increase $50 -$100,000 per year.

State Legislative would be needed to allow municipalities to audit and levy unreported personal property taxes, but Westerly could make this a requirement of doing work with the Town, that a current personal property tax declaration must be filed. This would be similar to the recent policy that an organization cannot have past due amount to the town in order to be awarded a contract.
